Beer brewing. Local produce.
Wide open space and plenty of it.

If it isn't the industrial kick-your-heels-up concrete floors, copper lighting or ceilings that reach for the sky that pull you in, it will be the sense of immediate connection with Dromana's 'old-skool' sensibilities and the down-to-earth friendliness that Jetty Road Brewery delivers.

This is where amber fluid aficionados come to relax, reinvigorate and have a corker of a time while doing it. It's all about the beer here and making sure everyone revels in the atmosphere that is fuelled by the love of local community and harvest, having a top-notch get-together and then coming back for more. This is the place where Australian public barbecue-maker Christies used to pump out Aussie grills to the rest of the nation, and you can still feel the grind of innovation and production within these four very tall walls where celebration is the main game.

Brewing beer is a sometimes serious business, especially when flavour and authentic Peninsula representation is at stake. The creators of Jetty Road Brewery's very fine Pale Ale, Amber Ale, IPA and Draught, all of which are on tap at the beautiful brewery bar, dedicate themselves to producing beer that never lets you down in the flavour or satisfaction departments. The team of brew-loving local lads have worked hard to develop a core range of beer that satisfies all tastebuds and transcends all seasons while representing what it means to get together with friends for a bevvy to celebrate life. Plain and simple. Jetty Road Brewery American-style Pale Ale comes with a hint of passionfruit and citrus, while the malt-driven Amber Ale has sweet aromas of toffee, strawberry jam and orange peel balanced with a generous bitterness. The US hops-based Jetty Road Brewery IPA delivers a flavour punch of tropical fruit notes like melon and guava, while Jetty Road Draft keeps things clean with a crisp traditional flavour and a slight new-world twist.

The quest for the best is reflected not only in the rusted steel and aged recycled timber interior, conversation-starting commissioned artwork or the long tables ready for lengthy weekend gasbags, lingering night-time chats and being pushed aside to make way for a boogie or ballroom dancing. It is also represented in the terrific taste offerings the talented selection of chefs at Jetty Road Brewery create in the kitchen.
